It was reported the committees are working on the "Spring Round-up" to be held April 5 at the William Bingham Gymnasium.

Mr Christie was appointed chairman of a committee, including P. T. A. members, to judge the playground essays and drawings that have been submitted by the school children.

EXPLANATION OF PAYMENTS SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS

The new starting date for figuring old-age and survivors insurance benefit payments is important to everyone now employed or self-employed in work covered by social security.

In explanation of this statement, John M Beale, manager of the Lewiston social security office, points out that work after 1950 can be used alone for figuring the amount of the benefit payment. Everyone who has been in work covered by social security continuously since January 1, 1951, will be fully insured by the middle of the present year. If he reaches age 65 and decides to retire, he will be eligible for old-age benefit payments. If he should die after a year and a half of covered work after 1950, his survivors can get benefit payments. He and his family will have this insurance protection until July 1954. They will continue to have this protection if he stays in covered work for at least one-half of the time after 1950 and up to the time of retirement at age 65 or later, or up to the time of his death.

Mr Beale advises everyone who plans to retire during 1952 to visit the Rumford post office on the second and fourth Mondays of any month before making a decision. He points out that an unemployed person will not immediately get the highest benefit payments if he files his claim during 1952. Moreover, he says, "Self-employment earnings for the year in which a claim is filed are not used to figure the amount of the payments. It may be to the advantage of both the employed and self-employed insured person to defer filing a claim until January 1953."

The Family That Survived

There was once a family named Smith. There were a father and mother and nine children. They had a good farm and two of the three older Smith boys had finished high school and were helping their father farm. A third son had just out of high school, worked in a radio repair shop in the nearest town, three miles away. He had a job which he enjoyed. One daughter had finished high school and the family was helping to pay her way through college. She worked in the college kitchen to help with the expenses. The other five children were in grammar school.

A year came when the entire family was in the Smith area with a very serious illness. The father and mother and all the children were sick. After a long illness it was determined that a case of diphtheria had been introduced into the family. The father and mother and all the children were sick. The father and mother and all the children were sick. The father and mother and all the children were sick.

The father and mother and all the children were sick. The father and mother and all the children were sick. The father and mother and all the children were sick. The father and mother and all the children were sick. The father and mother and all the children were sick.

Strengthening Experience. At the end of two years the family had come back to production. The father and mother and all the children were healthy. The father and mother and all the children were healthy. The father and mother and all the children were healthy.

The father and mother and all the children were healthy. The father and mother and all the children were healthy. The father and mother and all the children were healthy. The father and mother and all the children were healthy. The father and mother and all the children were healthy.

Need for Common Sense. When it came to having a safe home as a result of large expenditures for World War II and the danger of environmental pollution and waste of space and waste of time and money. The father and mother and all the children were healthy.

"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

Do That in Which You Excel

ELAND J. HALL, Little Rock, Ark., was a constant worrier in high school because his vision was defective. One day he realized his self-confidence was diminishing and he was growing more and more unhappy every day. Worst of all, he knew that he was becoming more and more unpopular.

When the boys chose sides for a ball game, he was either left out or chosen only after the more desirable players were listed. This, naturally, was due to the fact that he didn't see as well as the other boys.

In addition, he felt that his future security was jeopardized. He would probably go through life being the last one chosen, if chosen at all. Suddenly one day it came over him that worrying was not improving matters; in fact, his commonsense told him that worry only made matters worse.

Finally he decided that if he couldn't see well enough to play ball, he could do things that didn't require such perfect sight. So he took up swimming. While the other boys played ball, he went swimming and it wasn't very long before he was the best swimmer in the community. Maybe that didn't help his morale! Next he took up dancing and soon he could dance as well as any of the other boys.

That, too, increased his self-confidence. These two accomplishments made him more popular. Soon he found he was paying little attention to his defective vision.

When he graduated, he applied for a job with such confidence in himself, and such enthusiasm for the work he wanted to do, that he had a high feeling of security which has never waned. If he should feel dependent now he would only have to think of the many happy blind people he has met, some of them among the happiest people he has ever known.

Economic Highlights Happenings That Affect the Future. Next depression will dwarf that of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare.

As everyone knows, the arms program is playing an increasing role in maintaining and expanding the American economy. This year we will spend close to $25,000,000,000 for national security purposes. The peak annual rate may be as much as $30,000,000,000.

Answers to that run the gamut from the possibility of a new depression to the possibility of a new world war.

THE INMEDIATE political picture in Washington has been somewhat complicated by the announcement by Senator Russell that he will be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination at the national convention in Chicago next July.

Senator Russell may go into the convention with a map of the votes from the southern states which, of course, will not provide a commission but will make a statement of a leading bloc of votes in determining the final outcome.

Senator Russell has headed up the southern coalition to the state which, with Republican backing, has been successful in blocking or watering whatever legislation he wanted, much of it in opposition to President Truman, particularly the President's civil rights program.

In the 1948 convention in Philadelphia, Senator Russell received 60 votes for the nomination, but following the nomination of President Truman refused to join the party and thus the Democrats standard which was headed by Governor J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina. In 1952 Senator Russell received the vote of the southern delegates from Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana and some states which were not North Carolina and West Virginia.

When asked if he would head a third party in the south if Mr. Truman were the nominee of the Democratic convention, Senator Russell said: "I offer anyone to my record for party regularly, but I do not put party above country." He said that "as far as I am concerned there will be no need to talk to a third party."

In the meantime, repeated attempts have been made by some

The big spender, however, after claiming that his spending was on a basis of most departments of the Federal government. They are claiming that they are a big spender, but they are not a big spender.

"WELL, WHOSE FAULT IS IT?"

came in security speculation as there were then. In those days, securities were widely held on long margins, and some 25 per cent of all loans by Federal Reserve member banks were against securities. Today, he says, security loans total less than five per cent of all outstanding loans, and most securities are owned outright.

He also finds the situation very different from that of 1929 in the case of mortgage credit. The mortgage were written for relatively short periods of time and were not of the amortizing type. Today the typical mortgage runs for 15 years or more, and is gradually amortized in other words, the mortgage pays it off much as a man pays rent. Thus, Mr. McLeod observes, "there cannot be a forced liquidation of this type of credit either on urban dwellings or on farms."

This doesn't mean that he believes the outlook to be 100 per cent rosy. His guess is that when the arms spending is cut back, the level of general industrial activity may decline to 20 per cent, and total national spending might drop around 10 per cent. This decline will last one to two years. "By that time," he says, "if government policies are not discouraging to business, things probably would get better."

Mr. McLeod lays heavy stress on the rapid population rise — a factor which he thinks is not getting as much attention as it deserves. Our population is growing at a rate of 2,000,000 a year or so, and new family units are being formed at a rate of 1,000,000 a year. That, he points out, means a heavy demand for homes, appliances, automobiles, and all kinds of goods, services and facilities.

In sum, Mr. McLeod sees some bright spots ahead but nothing comparable to 28. Many other serious students of trends are in general agreement with him.

Titusville, Fla., Star-Advocate. "Behind the notion that inflation and prosperity go hand in hand is the supposition that money is wealth. There was a time of course, when money was wealth, because things that had value in themselves — gold, silver, cattle, wheat — were used as money. And for more than a century paper money could be exchanged, on demand, for precious metal. Today it is a criminal offense for an American citizen to possess gold money. But this apparent faith in money as wealth has been transferred to our paper currency which is not today redeemable in gold."

Altoona, Pa., Mirror. "We wonder what George Washington would have to say about some of the actions that take place these days in the city that bears his name? Washington was dedicated to the service of the country he helped to establish and to the welfare of his fellow Americans. He was not content with entrusting himself to office."

Across the Desk

A SHORT, but thought-provoking editorial appeared in the Homer Index, Homer, Michigan, recently. It was entitled "Helping Joe", and read like this:

"I can't eat in my restaurant because you're black. I can't play with my kids because you're yellow. I can't be on our ball club because you're Catholic. I can't offer my opinion because you're Jewish. And you can't be buried in my cemetery because you're a Mexican."

"Boy, what a beautiful opportunity for Joe Stalin to write to some of us and say: 'I just want you to know what a nice job you are doing to further the great work we are fostering. Racial prejudice and color consciousness, religious differences and differing sects should always be tried to keep them open and troublesome. My congratulations for your fine cooperation.'"

Real Democracy. From the Extension Messenger down in Putnam county, Georgia, came this editorial that points out to the home towns the true meaning of democracy:

"Saturday afternoon the candidates were having a field day. Just walk up the street and 15 people at least would shake your hand and give you a card. The boys were really after the votes."

"It does look like there could be some other way to elect officers," remarked one person.

Wise and Saving. From the Artesia Advocate, Artesia, N.M.: "Americans want our armed forces to have everything they need, but there is too much waste and too much extravagance. Those directing the spending and handling of the goods which the tax dollars buy are going to have to be just as efficient, just as economical and just as wise in using and spending as the average American is today. We can't afford as a nation to continue to increase our tax bill. . . . We must be saving . . . and . . . spend wisely if we expect to continue as a nation."

SUNDAY RIVER

Mrs. R. M. Fleet, Corres.

Mr and Mrs Harold Enman were at their cottage Sunday.

Russell Yates was home from South Paris from Friday night until Monday.

The last snow and rain caused a shut-off on the electric line for several hours this past week.

Our Mr Crow is here and finds the recent wind has plenty of nesting material ready on top of the snow.

Mrs Norris Scribner of South Waterford, Chairman of the Red Cross, has asked me to ask for donors of blood for the Red Cross Mobile Unit that will be in Norway

April 10th from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Anyone that feels they can give blood for this worthy cause contact Mrs Scribner or me before Monday, March 24th. The list must be in at this date. Remember the Red Cross is always on hand in any emergency and if they did not need our blood badly they would not ask for it. It is so little to ask for when our boys at the fighting front are dying for us in these United States. Remember, a pint of your blood may save the life of some mother's son in Korea.
